We will begin the day by visiting the experimental agricultural terraces of Moray—concentric circular terraces up to 150 meters deep that functioned as an ancient Inca agricultural laboratory, featuring irrigation channels and microclimates with temperature variations up to 15°C.

According to historians, these constructions constituted an important Inca agricultural laboratory. Since their terraces are built with their respective irrigation channels and each of them constitutes a microclimate. What is most striking is the great difference in average annual temperature between the top and the bottom of the depressions, a difference of up to 15°C.

Afterward, we pass through Urubamba for a delicious lunch of typical Peruvian cuisine, featuring fresh salads, traditional soups, main courses, and gourmet desserts.
